

TALL SHIP'S AHOY - 2010 South American Tall Ships Regatta

8 legs over 6 months of spectacular around South America!

Every once in awhile there is a special occurrence out on the water, when you can see 12 of the world's truly grand tall ships all together at the same time, let alone in one of the most renowned sea faring locations in the world Cape Horn !

Xplore will depart Ushuaia Argentina and head east along the Beagle Channel to rendezvous with this breath taking fleet of sailing ships of a bygone era when they reach Staten Island (Isla De Los Estados)

These grand girls of the ocean would have already travelled the eastern coast of South America from Rio De Janeiro on this Bi-centennial regatta which has been arranged with the joint cooperation of Argentina and Chile.

Xplore will continue to follow this 6 month regatta as they travel through Tierra del Fuego and continue along the west coast of Chile, Peru, Ecuador, Panama Canal, Venezuela and finish in Mexico.

See their Website: <http://www.regatabicentenario.com>

To combine Tall Ships, the grandeur of the mountain ranges of Tierra del Fuego, snow capped and glaciated in one event will be a marvel. To visit, and be a part of the program when they visit each of the historic and famous sea faring ports of South America on route will be incredible!

Xplore will follow as a perfect photographic platform and for enthusiasts of these grand ships along the following routes and ports of call.
